House with Obama Ties May Become B&B

Wednesday January 21, 2009

A house in Kempton, Indiana, a place described by the Indianapolis Star as a "remote Indiana farm town," that once was home to President Barack Obama's mother's family could become a bed and breakfast. According to an article in the Star, Shawn Clements, who owns the house and is restoring it, is considering turning it into a bed and breakfast.
